Dental Procedures have outgrown the basic teeth whitening and braces installation phase. Oraliah categorizes various dental procedures into two main components:

ORAL HEALTH = OVERALL HEALTH

The American Dental Association recommends a visit to the dentist at least once a year, but making an appointment once in six months prevents a host of oral related problems. It is important to understand and abide by the law.

The importance of oral hygiene is often ignored due to financial constraints, especially in India where a majority of the population is from middle-income category. Most people visit dentists only when they reach the threshold the pain and have not found relief in home remedies. It is always recommended to have periodic dental visits so that issues can be detected at early stage and the treatment also remains less painful, not to mention less expensive. Remember dental treatments are not expensive, neglect is.
